Introduction

- i.1 The Noble Heart Mantra of the Ten Vajra-Wielders contains a short teaching given in Śrāvastī by the Buddha about a group of ten great yakṣa generals who obey the Buddha's commands and offer him their full protection, and who will do the same for anyone who knows and recites their names and mantras.

i.2

The Tibetan text was translated during the Imperial period by the Indian Paṇḍitas Jinamitra and Dānaśīla along with the Tibetan translator Bandé Yeshé Dé. It is listed in both the Denkarma¹ and Phanhangma² imperial catalogs of translated works. The text does not appear to have been translated into Chinese and there is no known Sanskrit witness. While the title suggests that this text contains a heart mantra for the bodhisattva Vajrapāṇi, the content of this text makes it clear that the term vajrapāṇi (Tib. lag na rdo rje) is here used as a general epithet that applies to each of ten great yakṣa generals. Some of these “vajra-wielding” yakṣa generals are well known and have names that are attested in various sources that survive in Sanskrit, but others appear to be unique to the set of ten presented in this text. Their names are as follows:

- Victorious Supreme Bull
- Aṭavika
- Haimavata
- Pāñcika
- Mañibhadra
- Renowned Fortunate One
- Kubera
- Beautifying the Earth
- Decorated with Garlands
- Vaiśravaṇa

i.3

This translation was prepared from the witnesses found in the Tantra Collection (rgyud 'bum) and the Compendium of Dhāraṇīs (gzungs 'dus)^{3 4} in the Degé Kangyur, in consultation with the Comparative Edition of the Kangyur (dpe bsdur ma), the Stok Palace Kangyur, and the Phukdrak Kangyur.

The Noble Heart Mantra of the Ten Vajra-Wielders

1.1

Homage to all buddhas and bodhisattvas.

1.2

Thus did I hear at one time. The Blessed One was staying at Prince Jeta's Grove, Anāthapiṇḍada's park in Śrāvastī. Then, the Blessed One addressed Venerable Ānanda:

1.3

“Ānanda, any son or daughter of good family who knows the names of the ten vajra-wielding great yakṣa generals, knows their lineages, or knows their mantras will not be affected by kākhordas. Yakṣas will not harm them. They will not be harmed by rākṣasas, by consuming leftover food, or by consuming poison. From that point forward, they will not be harmed by takṣakas.⁵

1.4

tadyathā | ukiri makiri mirīcapāśabari⁶ ulime milime ilime milime ilime milime ilimalime hikke dhikke hukke⁷ dhudhure pradhare alamphale phālamphale khukhume tikume tume khari khari sādha sādha sarvabakkvale vardhamabakkvale

1.5

“Ānanda, may these ten vajra-wielding great yakṣa generals always follow right behind me. May they protect me even when asleep, unconscious, or completely unconscious. May they fulfill the Blessed One's command to protect, shelter, surround, guard, and ensure peace and wellbeing.

“The ten are as follows: Victorious Supreme Bull, Aṭavika, Haimavata, Pāñcika, Mañibhadra, Renowned Fortunate One, Kubera, Beautifying the Earth, Decorated with Garlands, and the great king and dharma protector Vaiśravaṇa.

1.7 “May these ten vajra-wielding great yakṣa generals always follow right behind me. May they protect me even when asleep, unconscious, or completely unconscious. May they fulfill the Blessed One’s command to protect, shelter, surround, guard, and ensure peace and wellbeing. May these these mantra formulas be accomplished svāhā.

1.8 tadyathā | sarasaraṇe svāhā

1.9 “These are the mantra formulas of the ten vajra-wielders:

1.10 tadyathā | ugete kete saṅkate uddule dhadhe tate tapatte svāhā |

1.11 cice cice cikhe locchedani⁸ bhedani sarvavidyācchedani sarvakṛtyākakhorda⁹ parakṛtyānāśani¹⁰

1.12 These are the supreme mantra formulas of the ten vajra-wielding kings of vidyās.

1.13 tadyathā | ale lakṣe pakele lakṣe ake vake lakṣe svāhā |

1.14 tadyathā | hutu hutu hututu vitu vitu vitutu gaccha gaccha sapte patahataye svāhā |

1.15 namo bhagavato buddhasya sidhyantu mantrapadāḥ svāhā.”

1.16 After the Blessed One had said this, Venerable Ānanda and the world with its gods, human beings, asuras, and gandharvas rejoiced and praised what the Blessed One had said.

1.17 This concludes “The Noble Heart Mantra of the Ten Vajra-Wielders”.

4. Note that there is a discrepancy among various databases for cataloging the Toh 951 version of this text within vol. 101 or 102 of the Degé Kangyur. See Toh 951, n.3, for details.
5. Following the reading in the Phukdrak Kangyur (F): phyis 'jog po rnams kyang gnod par mi 'gyur ro. Toh 754, Toh 951, and S read 'jog pa rnams. The translation is tentative. A nāga king named Takṣaka ('jog po) is well-attested, so this plural form is taken to refer to the nāgas associated with him.
6. Following Toh 951: sha ba ri. Toh 754, S, and F read sha pa ri.
7. Following Toh 754 and S: hik+ke d+hik+ke huk+ke. Toh 951 reads hig ke d+hig ke hug ke.
8. Following Toh 754: ts+tshe da ni. Toh 951, S, Y, J, K, and C all read ts+tshe da ne.
9. Toh 754 and Toh 951 read sarba kr-i ta kA khorda. This transliteration has been emended to reflect the common pairing of the terms kṛtyā-kākhorda, which are terms for two types of beings conjured in magical rites.
10. Toh 754 and Toh 951 read pa ra k-ri ta nA sha ni. Again, this transliteration has been corrected from the Tibetan rendering to kṛtyā, which refers to a type of spell and/or the beings associated with those spells.

This was an important early site for the Buddha's growing community. Anāthapiṇḍada, a wealthy patron of the Buddha, purchased the park, located outside Śrāvastī, at great cost, purportedly covering the ground with gold, and donated it to the saṅgha. It was there that the Buddha spent several rainy seasons and gave discourses that were later recorded as sūtras. It was also the site for one of the first Buddhist monasteries. A park in Śrāvastī, the capital of the ancient kingdom of Kośala in northern India. It was owned by Prince Jeta, and the wealthy merchant Anāthapiṇḍada, wishing to offer it to the Buddha, bought it from him by covering the entire property with gold coins. It was to become the place where the monks could be housed during the monsoon season, thus creating the first Buddhist monastery. It is therefore the setting for many of the Buddha's discourses.

A major śrāvaka disciple and personal attendant of the Buddha Śākyamuni during the last twenty-five years of his life. He was a cousin of the Buddha (according to the Mahāvastu, he was a son of Śuklodana, one of the brothers of King Śuddhodana, which means he was a brother of Devadatta; other sources say he was a son of Amṛtodana, another brother of King Śuddhodana, which means he would have been a brother of Aniruddha).

Ānanda, having always been in the Buddha's presence, is said to have memorized all the teachings he heard and is celebrated for having recited all the Buddha's teachings by memory at the first council of the Buddhist saṅgha, thus preserving the teachings after the Buddha's parinirvāṇa. The phrase "Thus did I hear at one time," found at the beginning of the sūtras, usually stands for his recitation of the teachings. He became a patriarch after the passing of Mahākāśyapa.

During the life of the Buddha, Śrāvastī was the capital city of the powerful kingdom of Kośala, ruled by King Prasenajit, who became a follower and patron of the Buddha. It was also the hometown of Anāthapiṇḍada, the wealthy patron who first invited the Buddha there, and then offered him a park known as Jetavana, Prince Jeta’s Grove, which became one of the first Buddhist monasteries. The Buddha is said to have spent about twenty-five rainy seasons with his disciples in Śrāvastī, thus it is named as the setting of numerous events and teachings. It is located in present-day Uttar Pradesh in northern India.
